Phillips Is Ready For Exeter Game

With but two days to go to the climax of the season, the encounter Saturday with Exeter, Phillips Academy's football team went into its final days of practice at full strength. Coaches Steve Sorota, Ed Flannagan, and Jack Meany will have available all but one man who started with them last September.

On the basis of the season's record thus far, Andover seems to have a slight edge, having beaten the Harvard Freshmen 13-6, while Exeter was beaten by them once and tied them 6-6 last week. By and large, however, the two teams have run parallel thus far, each losing to Yale, each showing plenty of power against weaker teams.

Andover's squad has been reinforced by the return of Lawrence "Larry" Toms, a 17-year-old veteran from Carpinteria, Calif., who stands 6 ft. 3" and who weighs 170 lbs. Toms was injured earlier in the season but should see plenty of action Saturday.

Andover's probable starting lineup will be: Le, Haymond; lt, Clayton; lg, Bishop; c, Toms or Bidgood; rg, Phelps; rt, Harvey; re, Kemp or Vose; qb, Hammer; lhb, Captain Duden; rhb, T. Hudner; fullback, O'Leary.

The game will be held at Brothers Field at 2:00. The Andover-Exeter soccer game, originally scheduled for yesterday will be played at 11:00 Saturday at Andover.

Open House At Library Sunday

Books in all their variety will be on display at the open house which the Memorial Hall Library will hold Sunday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. The open house will mark the beginning of Book Week.

Among the exhibits to be featured are: new books of the fall, America in books, recent technical books, sixty outstanding books of 1942, your child's library and understanding our allies. Parents will find the exhibits helpful in planning children's home libraries, and all will find suggestions for Christmas book giving. There will be emphasis on inexpensive reprint editions, varying in price from 25 cents to $1.00.

At 4:00, there will be a series of brief book reviews by members of the staff and board of trustees. Among those taking part will be Miss Mary Byers Smith, Nathan C. Hamblin, Miss Margaret D. Manning, Miss Dorothy H. Ruhl, Miss Nancy E. Babcock, Miss Evelyn R. Robinson, Miss Sarah A. Ballard and Miss Miriam Putnam.

Trucks Must Get ODT Certificates

All Gas Book Holders To Register For Tires

Though fuel oil rationing remains the main concentration point of the activities of the local war price and rationing board this week, preparations are already being made for the issuance of "certificates of war necessity," starting November 22. Effective on that day, all gasoline or tire applications for trucks and commercial vehicles taxis, and all vehicles available for public rental, must be accompanied by such a certificate, which is issued by ODT.

Eligibility for truck tires will be practically unchanged from the present ranking, but all the vehicles described above must have their tires inspected between November 15 and January 15. If all requirements have been filled, it is expected that all such vehicles will be sufficiently equipped with tires to provide for all essential driving.

Henry Parkman, Jr., state OPA director, has announced that, under the new mileage rationing program, "it is hoped...that all vehicles will be kept rolling for essential purposes until the situation is relieved by a volume manufacture of synthetic rubber.

The local rationing board reminds Andover car owners that all holders of A, B, C and D books are required to re-register now until November 21. A form may be picked up at the rationing office, police or fire station, on which a car

Dedicate Service Flag At Town Hall

Many Present At Stirring Ceremony

More than 500 people witnessed an unusually impressive ceremony last Sunday afternoon at the town hall, as Andover post 2128, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and its auxiliary presented a large service flag to the town.

The afternoon's program began with a parade from Punchard high school to the town hall, with the Punchard girls' band, Company 80, Mass. State Guard, and the members of the V.F.W. and auxiliary in line. Past Commander John M. Erving opened the speaking program at 3:00, calling on Rev. Frederick B. Noss for the invocation.

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Erving pointed out that the post had been behind the servicemen since Pearl Harbor, and had begun sending comfort kits to local boys in service as early as January. Later, he said, the task became too large as the number of servicemen increased, and the post has been superseded by the Servicemen's Fund committee in this work.

Twenty-three war relief and charitable organizations will benefit from the combined Community Chest—USO War Campaign drive, to be held here during the week beginning next Tuesday. A large number of local people, under the general chairmanship of Dr. Claude M. Fuess, will assist in the drive.

Preliminary plans were made at the first meeting Monday evening at the home of Dr. Fuess, and all the solicitors, and anyone else interested in aiding in the work, are asked to meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the music room of the Junior high school.

This year, the Community Chest has joined with the USO and other wartime agencies in a united war campaign. The goal for Lawrence and the surrounding towns has been set at $185,000, approximately $75,000 more than was realized from the Chest campaign a year ago. In terms of individual contributions, this means an average increase of about 70 percent.

As in previous years, 13 agencies will benefit from the Community Chest fund: the Andover Guild, Boy Scouts, Lawrence Catholic Charities center, Lawrence City Mission, Girl Scouts, International Institute, Protectory of Mary Immaculate, S.P.C.C., St. Ann's Orphanage, Tuberculosis League, YMCA, YWCA, and YMHA. In the Lawrence region, $120,000 is asked for the Community Chest, $25,000 for the USO, $5,000 for the servicemen's division, Lawrence Defense Council (which desires to maintain a recreation center for servicemen in town), $7,000 each for the British War Relief and United China

Friend Of Local Woman Spent December 7 In Tunnel On Oahu, Returned Across Pacific On Aquitania

"The night of December 7, when I was lying on rough planks in a tunnel several hundred feet beneath the surface of one of Oahu's numerous hills, lying awake keeping the mosquitoes from biting Tommy, and wondering where Alex, my husband, was, just the thought that all of you were anxious about us made me feel better. Instinctively I knew that when word first reached you of that cowardly attack, your first thought would be of my safety and you don't know how much moral support it gave me. There are so many little human interest incidents I could tell you..."

So runs a letter received recently by Miss Anna M. Greeley of Summer street from a former classmate at Portia Law school in Boston, who was in Oahu, Terr. of Hawaii, on December 7 last. Her husband, a lieutenant in the Navy, was stationed there.

The letter continues, "we spent all the first day and night in a tunnel, and shortly after the attack started, two Japanese girls, sisters, joined us. The older one was married to an American defense worker (mixed marriages are quite common in Honolulu) and the younger one, about 18 or 19 years old, had a four-week old baby in her arms. In their haste to get to safety, the young mother hadn't taken a bottle or anything with her. Her brother-in-law got some warm milk for the baby at the project's commissary, but the only

Tin Can Collection Sunday Afternoon

Tin cans collected during the past month by Andover householders will be picked up Sunday afternoon, starting at 2:00. A house-to-house canvass covering the entire town will be made and each householder is urged to have the cans placed on the curb, ready to be picked up, by noon.

Each empty tin can should be washed thoroughly and its label removed, both ends cut and stepped on to flatten. It should be kept dry to prevent rusting.

Sunday's canvass will be for cans only; no other scrap will be picked up in this collection.

Hansen Boys Now In Service

Now on active duty in the armed forces are Stephen E. Hansen and Norman F. Hansen, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hansen of 123½ Main street.

Stephen reported to Fort Devens recently to begin training as a flying cadet in the Army Air Force. He attended the local public schools, and was graduated from Punchard high school in 1937. He is an experienced flyer, and was until recently a member of the Civil Air Patrol in Beverly. He holds his civilian pilot's license, and has studied at M.I.T.'s Pre-Flight school.

Norman Hansen is now attending the U.S. Naval Reserve Midshipman school at Columbia university. On completion of his course there, he hopes to take two months further training at Northwestern university.

Norman attended the Andover public schools, and was graduated in 1937 from Phillips Academy. He received his bachelor's degree at Amherst college in 1941. He did graduate work at Harvard during the following summer, and taught last year at the Loomis school in Windsor, Conn.

Addison Exhibit Stresses Modern School Design

The Addison Gallery has just opened an exhibition, Architecture for the Modern School, lent by the Museum of Modern Art, New York City.

The exhibition consists of 40 enlargements of the best modern schools for the elementary grades, a scale model, and 30 panels with drawings, photographs and explanatory labels which contrast the old and the new methods of elementary education and show the contribution modern architecture can make to modern education. Examples of good modern design are shown not only in school-houses of the United States but in those of Brazil, England, France, Sweden and Switzerland. A few non-elementary schools are shown, which present different problems but similar principles of design. Solutions of the problems of school-building brought about by priorities in materials and stoppage of non-essential construction are also considered.

The exhibition will be shown in three installments, November 6—November 12, November 13—November 20, and November 20—November 29.

For 45 years General Electric has developed and built electric equipment for warships. Here are a few of the ways in which electricity serves the Navy.

1. Just one battleship may have electric generators to produce as much as 180,000 kilowatts. This power would supply the needs of a city of 375,000.

2. Searchlights produce millions of candlepower of light to aid in detecting enemy ships and planes, and to guide Navy gunners to their targets.

3. More than 20 different operations are performed in bringing a naval gun to bear on its target. Electricity helps to co-ordinate these operations.

4. When a battleship goes into action, electricity helps direct the ship, operate the guns, and give the orders. G.E. is building equipment to do these jobs.

General Electric believes that its first duty as a good citizen is to be a good soldier.

Max Lerner To Speak Before November Club

DR. MAX LERNER

Dr. Max Lerner, professor of government at Williams college and ex-editor of The Nation, will speak at the annual guest night of the November club Monday evening at 8:15. His subject will be "A Fighting Faith for Democracy." Dr. Lerner will discuss the American war effort in relation to up-to-the-minute developments abroad, and will show, among other things, how this war is different from previous conflicts.

In recent months, most of his articles and editorials have appeared in The New Republic. He is also a consultant for the Office of Facts and Figures. He was a lecturer at Harvard during the 1935-36 session, and accepted the editorship of The Nation in 1936, holding this post until he joined the Williams faculty in 1938.

Community Orchestra To Present "Messiah"

The Andover Community orchestra, starting its fourth season, will present Handel's familiar "Messiah" at the Memorial auditorium on December 4. The Andover Male choir, the Andover Choral society and several soloists will take part in the program.

The groups presented the "Messiah" last year for the first time, and scored an overwhelming success. Because of the favorable reception received then, and also because of the difficulties connected with gas and tire shortages this year the oratorio will be given again.

This year's officers are Jessie Higgins, manager; Robert B. Woolsey, business manager, G. Grenville Benedict, publicity director; Helen Whitcomb Barss, ticket manager; and Richard Pieters, librarian. The executive committee is composed of Helen Eaton, Jessie Higgins, Frances S. Magoon and George Dennison.

Season tickets, priced at $1.10, may be obtained from Mrs. John Sedgwick Barss of Hidden Field, or at Temple's music store. Tickets for the December 4 concert will go on sale November 25 at 60 cents each.

Miss Angie Dantos, a Senior at Nason college, Springvale, Me., took part in a panel discussion at the chapel service recently.

Junior High Notes Claudia Nicoll

The Junior High has played a return game with the Phillips Academy Junior Athletics. The Junior high defeated Phillips, 26-6, making three touchdowns during the first quarter. The fourth touchdown was made in the third quarter. Phillips made their touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Phillip Markey played a remarkable game. He made two touchdowns and the extra points were rushed by George Colizzi, who also rushed the extra point after a touchdown made by Gus Sheehy, George Colizzi also made a touchdown with the aid of fine blocking by Edward Morgan.

Those taking part were: Phillip Markey, George Colizzi, Edward Morgan, Raymond LaRosa, Robert Phinney, James Coleman, John Wirtz, Joseph Peters, Billy Westcotte, Gus Sheehy and Tony Cavalero.

The Junior High sold $80.35 worth of war stamps and bonds last week. The students are planning to buy $900 worth of war stamps before the school year is over, the purchase price of a "jeep."

The Junior high has entered the Schools at War program. This program will encourage the students to buy more stamps and bonds.

The following girls have volunteered to serve in the post office between November 30 and December 18 for the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals:

Lois Strong, Shirley Sawyer, Peggy Shaw, Letitia Noss, Jane Lewis, Peggy Kimball, Marjorie Weeks, Jean Court, Wilhelmina Beck, Diane Gould, Ruth Brimer, Claudia Nicoll, Frances Little, Ruth Glennie, Virginia Hardy.

Claudia Nicoll is chairman of the sale for the Junior high.

Postoffice Expects Heavy Christmas Mail

"The movement of a deluge of Christmas packages, cards and letters" this year has been termed by postoffice officials, in a letter to all branches in the United States, "the most gigantic task in our history." Since retail store sales in September, the last month on which records are available, were second only to those of December, 1941, such heavy purchases pre-empt equally heavy mailing.

Andover people are asked to mail earlier than ever before, and to be sure the addresses are correct and legible. There are now 25,000 experienced postal workers in service, and it has been necessary to find thousands of other inexperienced men for the Christmas rush. Trucks are hard to obtain, and winter weather presents another difficulty.

The free mailing privileges extended to servicemen have increased the volume of their mail by 30 percent, and it will grow greater as the forces grow still larger.

The postoffices in the country experienced a similar terrific jam at Christmas, 1918, and it is hoped that the public will cooperate this time by doing its mailing early.

RED CROSS NEWS

The Junior Red Cross, which was formed by President Wilson in 1917 to give the school children of America an opportunity to serve in the war effort, and which has become perhaps the outstanding development of Red Cross activities in recent years, is going stronger than ever in the present conflict.

The first two weeks of this month, the nation-wide Enrollment for Service drive by the Junior Red Cross has been taking place. Pupils in every public and parochial, elementary and high school in Andover at the present time, are being given the opportunity to join, and the response, according to Miss Catherine Barrett, chairman of the local Junior chapter, has been excellent.

Money raised in the schools for Red Cross purposes is known as the Junior Red Cross Service Fund, and is used for the following purposes: payment of school membership in the Junior Red Cross, financing of local Junior activities, and voluntary contribution to the National Children's Fund.

The major projects to be carried on here in Andover will be determined by the amount of money left in the Junior treasury after these enrollment fees have been paid. Already the members in the Junior high school, under the capable direction of Miss Nancy Hird of the faculty, have pledged their assistance in filling a number of Thanksgiving baskets for needy families.

Those interested in joining the Red Cross home nursing course recently announced here are reminded that the quota of students is not yet filled. Those wishing to enroll should get in touch with Mrs. George French at once. The course will probably be held in the Red Cross rooms.

Sewing is progressing rapidly in the Red Cross rooms, but more women are needed to sew all day Tuesday and Thursday morning. A great deal of work still remains to be done.

Kit bags for men going overseas in the armed forces are still being made, at a cost of $1 each. The bags are distributed only to men embarking for foreign duty, and contain soap, playing cards, cigarettes and other useful material.

Andover was asked originally to furnish $400 for this purpose, and $300 has already been subscribed. With more troops going overseas in the new invasion, Andover's quota will probably be raised.

TO ADDRESS SERVICE CLUB

Hon. Lawrence F. Quigley, commandant of the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea, will make his second appearance here in the space of a few weeks when he addresses the Service club tonight at 6:15 at the Square and Compass club. His previous address, at the dedication of the Legion's servicemen's plaque, was well received by a large audience.

Mr. Quigley was formerly mayor of Chelsea, and has been very active in civic affairs and also in Soldier's relief work.

Similar contests were held for schools in metropolitan Boston and within a 15-mile radius of the city.

The award was based on the average weight of scrap collected per pupil, and the average St. Augustine's pupil brought in 92 pounds, the total amounting to

Of Course We Will

It's Community Chest time again—and it's war-time this year. Last year we ran our Community Chest drive about the same time those nice little Japanese ambassadors were talking about peace down in Washington; a few weeks later we were at war.

But war or no war, we're still a Community. And as a Community we have very important things to take care of, to provide money for. We have the Guild, we have the Scouts, we have the many other things that have been benefited by the Chest in the past. These must go on, more now than ever. What those agencies do is a very definite part of our war effort at home.

This year our Community is part of a National Community that has a job to do. There's the U. S. O., which has made excellent strides in keeping up training camp morale, and there are the many war relief agencies. They all need assistance; they merit assistance.

The Community Chest is trying to take care of all these things this year. Andover's quota, with the quotas of all other communities over the Nation, has increased tremendously. Are we going to make it? Are we going to surpass it? Well, we wouldn't be Andover if we didn't.

This Sober Town

We had the extreme pleasure Sunday evening of ranging the streets, purely as an innocent bystander, during the blackout activities going on at Elm and High streets, Maple and Wolcott avenues. Enough we are sorry to say that those pleasant boulevards are no more, and the majority of their estimable inhabitants blown to smithereens, we think that our civilian defense crews did much to solace their last hours.

A few minutes after those Nazi villains roared overhead, Maple and Walnut avenues had been demolished, and a B.P.W. truck came along and wooden trestles were placed across their entrances.

We sauntered down the middle of Wolcott avenue, and found a couple of wardens trying to set off a damp incendiary bomb—rather an unorthodox procedure. The incident had already been telephoned in, and, just as the bomb opened up, casting a lurid glare like red fire on Fourth of July, the auxiliary firemen charged up Elm street to the corner of Wolcott.

One of them pounded down the street in his heavy knee-boots, found out just what kind of a fire it was—the warden had the whole thing at his fingertips—and holstered up the street to bring down such and such kinds of hose.

A couple of other firemen galloped up, and, in practically total darkness, for the bomb had burned itself out, tackled the intricate job of opening up the hydrant valves, or whatever they are. Did a good job of it, too, and had water playing in no time.

Since everything seemed under control, and we were looking for more gory sights, we continued down Wolcott and came upon a referee, well bundled up and equipped with pad and pencil. His job, he told us, was to note how quickly the warden got to the incident, when he telephoned the report center, what apparatus showed up and when. Since we were both after information, we decided to stick together.

Pretty soon, a beach wagon-ambulance pulled up at the corner of Wolcott and Walnut; the blast had hit the big white house on the east corner. The warden reported that there were five girls in there, all seriously injured. We wanted very much to go in and see the carnage, and, by grace of a call for more first aiders, in we went.

Considering the pain they were in, the five girls—all very pretty ones, incidentally—maintained a very edifying composure. One had a broken leg, another a severed artery, another was lying unconscious in the kitchen. There were other assorted calamities.

The victims wore labels giving some terse indication of what was the matter with them, and the first-aiders, after a brief examination, put some more information on the labels. One of them put a tourniquet on the young lady with the severed artery. He calmly brought out a monster lipstick. The poor girl flinched. He announced that he was about to brand her forehead with the symbol "TK." Tears came to her eyes; she was thinking, perhaps, of the boys on Bataan, in the Solomons, even on the Mediterranean shore. A tiny sacrifice in a great cause, she wore a crimson "TK" before any of us could say "Jack Robinson."

We had many other adventures before the night was out. We saw both the quick and the dead being ferried away from the ruins of Maple avenue; we saw two more ambulance crews at work at 12 and 36 High street; we heard the stenorian shout of a fireman at 52 High, "The hydrant wrench—down here, the HYDRANT WRENCH!", in tones sufficiently dire to half-convince the people behind the curtains that there might be a real fire in back somewhere.

Everybody was still busy a half-hour after the blackout, but we decided to call it a night. We decided then and there that, whether Andover is to have a real raid sometime or not, lots of people are putting everything they've got into their civilian defense endeavors. They deserve as much credit as you and we can give them.

Missionary To Speak At Christ Church

On Sunday morning at 11:00 in Christ church, the Rev. Ernest H. Forster, a missionary for ten years in China will be the preacher. Mr. Forster returned to this country about two months ago on the refugee ship Gripsholm, being one of the last American missionaries to leave China. He has been in China throughout the war and was one of the three Christian missionaries remaining in Nanking during the siege and capture of that city.

Punchard Notes

Ruth Gregory

Last Sunday, the girls' band gave a creditable performance at the dedication of the service flag at the town hall. They played the "Star Spangled Banner" and "Onward Christian Soldiers," led by their majorette, Jean Gilfoy. Yesterday at the Punchard-Methuen game, they performed during the halves. Included in their performance was a maze, wheels, and a V for Victory. The whole execution was very effective.

Rooms 6 and 14 have reported 100 percent membership in the Red Cross drive. At the end of the first day the school had collected enough for it to be able to enroll, but the pupils are trying for perfect membership.

On Tuesday, the school had a rally for the Punchard-Methuen football game. It was held in the bleachers during the seventh period. The cheerleaders, headed by Barbara Ferrier, had charge. They gave several cheers including cheers for the team, the captain, and individual players. The spirit that was shown proves that the school as a whole is behind the team.

Service Flag Dedicated

Commander George Symonds of the V.F.W., remarked that only 25 years ago, another flag was unveiled in the Square for a similar purpose. On behalf of the post, he formally presented the flag, which had just been unfurled by Mrs. Symonds, to Chairman Roy E. Hardy of the Board of Selectmen.

Mr. Hardy, in response, said that he was "very happy and proud to represent Andover in accepting this flag. May it remind us of the sacrifices being made by our boys in service."

He pointed out that, because of the wide variety in the ways of life of the 30 united nations, we cannot hope or expect that our own culture will be transmitted to them. In this national crisis, he said, we can learn from them, and progress from our old idea of "independence" to a new one of "interdependence."

Whatever our attitude towards Britain, he said, we must admit that only the dogged courage of its people stood between Hitler and us. And whatever we think of Russia's religion or economic system, we must grant that it has been our bulwark against Germany. The lesson to be learned from this, he added, is that we cannot maintain our existence alone, but must co-operate with the other peoples of the world.

Representative J. Everett Collins termed the new banner "a glorious picture—the emblem of this country's membership in a great union of free peoples." He asked his audience to pay a lasting tribute to the boys who are now represented by gold stars, and to those "who will die before the war ends for a new birth of freedom, and a lasting peace for all."

Elm Street—Off the Square

Dr. Claude M. Fuess, who delivered the address of the day, stated that, though the war has been in progress less than a year, already one out of every fourteen Andover residents have been called into service, "and it is the best who have gone, the young, the vigorous, all over the world. With them, we can endure and win, and we are deeply proud of them."

"A single star may seem an impersonal sort of remembrance," he said, "but it stands for a typical citizen. The list of the men who have gone away reads like a true cross-section of the town."

Pointing out the privation and dangers which are commonplace to the servicemen, he said that the new flag will be a silent reminder to civilians of their own duty to their government. "There must be no hoarders, no grumblers, no chiselers, no cheap politicians. We must devote all our energies to equipping our boys for their unromantic task."

"I am glad that this flag has been presented to the town, and I am stirred by its implications. Because of the hundreds of other communities in which these flags have been erected, and because all these flags represent what ours does, we cannot possibly lose this fight for freedom."

The Punchard girls' band rendered "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and benediction was offered by Very Rev. Thomas B. Austin, O.S.A.

The program was concluded with a parade back to the high school building. In the line of march were a squad of police officers led by Chief George Dane and Sergeants W. R. Hickey and David Nicoll, and the State Guardsmen, led by Captain H. Garrison Holt, in addition to the band and the V.F.W. and auxiliary.

Steven Thiras, '46, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thiras of Upland road, was initiated into Delta Upsilon fraternity as part of the Alumni Day exercises at Bowdoin college Friday evening.

Ask Clothing For Russian Relief

At the request of Mrs. L. Cushing Goodhue of Boston, and in response to urgent appeals from Russia for warm clothing, for which cooperation in shipping has been promised by U.S. government officials, the local Russian War Relief society is now making an intensive collection of warm woolen clothing, and is also urging townspeople to do more knitting.

The following articles are urgently needed for immediate shipment: woolen pullovers, woolen gloves with two fingers, and woolen scarves, socks, underwear and blankets.

The Red Cross has promised the use of their rooms for storing the material collected, and those wishing to donate clothing are asked to leave it in the Red Cross rooms. Mrs. Julius Rockwell is local chairman of the drive.

DONOVAN IN NAVAL AVIATION

Among a large group of Naval aviation cadets inducted last Thursday by the Navy's Flight Selection board in Boston was Daniel F. Donovan, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Donovan of Andover street, Ballardvale. Donovan graduated from Punchard high in 1940, where he was awarded his letter in football.

Xmas Tree Loss Worst—

thing even remotely resembling a bottle was one of those sugar dispensers used in restaurants. The poor girl tried to feed the baby from a spoon, but that was very unsatisfactory. I happened to remember reading somewhere about a mother caught in similar circumstances, who soaked a corner of a clean white cloth in the milk and then placed it in the baby's mouth. I told her about it, and it saved the situation.

"God willing, this year I'm going to have my family with me for a really Merry Christmas. Besides having our holiday spirits cooled by the outbreak of war, the loss of a load of Christmas trees enroute to the Hawaiian islands made matters worse...after Tommy retired I went out my back door (in a blackout, remember!) and picked several branches from a koa tree. I put them in a can of dampened sand on the table and decorated them with the novelties we had. In the morning, the effect was what was desired, for Tommy was overjoyed. The toys I ordered for him in early November, however, didn't arrive till February.

"We didn't leave the islands until Easter Sunday. We came on the Aquitania—unconvoyed! I can never very well express my feelings as I saw the coast line of Oahu recede in the distance...We had a destroyer escort all the first day, but when we awoke the next morning it was gone. We were zig-zagging along, all by ourselves in the third largest ship in the world!

"As we sailed out of the inner harbor we had a lifeboat drill and were instructed how to adjust the lifebelts and cautioned to keep them with us at all times...The officer in charge warned us, after another drill, 'Remember that this is the last one. If you ever hear that warning gong again, it will be the real thing.'

"We were told that we would land Friday morning, so Thursday night we all felt fairly good, realizing for the first time a lifting of the suspense of the previous days. I remember how gay we were until Mrs. — told us that this was the most dangerous night of all, for Axis subs would probably be just several hundred miles off shore, if anywhere, and right in our neighborhood. She said all the lifeboats had been stocked, and the officers were standing by, just in case.

"Well, we didn't sleep much that night, but in the gray light of the dawn, when we made out the outline of Catalina ahead of us, and realized we were not more than 50 miles off shore, our spirits really rose...

"To make a long story short, we are already planning to return to Honolulu if and when the war ends...we loved it out there, and really want to see it again under peacetime regulations.

"With love to all the girls, I remain as ever.

(Mrs. Alexander M. Rowell)

Dr. Stone Commissioned Captain In Air Corps

Dr. Knowlton Davies Stone, 37, of 23 Orchard street, Greenfield, was recently sworn into the army air corps as a captain in the medical division at Westover field, Chicopee. Dr. Stone is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Colver J. Stone of Locke street, and has many friends here. He was educated in Andover's public schools, at Phillips academy and Yale university.

He reported for preliminary training at Barksdale Field, Shreveport, La., on Saturday. His wife and three children will continue to reside in Greenfield.

For the past five years, Dr. Stone has conducted his practice in Greenfield, specializing in heart and blood disorders. He is also an adept musician and a supporter of the Pioneer Valley symphony orchestra, for which he has contributed arrangements played by it during the past two years.

After graduating from Phillips Academy, he received his A.B. at Yale in 1928. His first year of medical training was at King's college, the University of London, England. He received his medical degree from the Long Island Medical college.

His general internship was served at Worcester City hospital, while his psychiatric internship was at Worcester state hospital. He has taken courses at the Cook county hospital in Chicago, and last winter studied heart and blood conditions at the Mass. General and Boston City hospitals. He studied at Harvard this summer.

owner will list the serial numbers of the tires on his vehicle. The form must be filled and mailed to the rationing board; if the owner possesses no more than five tires on the vehicle, part of the form will be returned to him to be retained by him. If more than five tires are declared, the applicant must prove to the board that all in excess of five have subsequently been disposed of to the Railway Express agency, which handles all tires re-purchased by defense industries. The Express trucks will pick up the tires if the owner will call their office.

This procedure must be followed, and those who have either failed to re-register, or have shown tires in excess of five, will have all their gasoline ration recalled not later than December 12.

The local board is expected to begin shortly the appointment of tire inspectors, generally in the ration of one inspector to 360 rationed vehicles. All holders of gas ration books and tire inspection forms must have periodic inspections, every four months for A ration holders, every 60 days for B and C holders. The first inspection will take place before January 31, and the inspector's recommendations must be followed.

Eligibility for passenger car tires will be based on the gasoline rations allotted; every supplemental gas application will be reviewed when the tire application is made.

THEM'S NOT PLAYTHINGS

WE'VE GOT TO TAKE GOOD CARE OF OUR ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES NOW!

Yes! We Americans were a carefree family up until Pearl Harbor. It was easy to replace things we broke. Conservation was not so important. But now it's different! We've stopped the waste. We've plugged up the leaks with Yankee speed and thoroughness. Sonny has a hard time finding even a tin can to bang away at now. You see, mom's saving those cans for Uncle Sam. And she's taking good care of her electrical gadgets, too! What with appliance manufacturers turning out bullets and such, toasters and flat irons and things are getting mighty scarce. It pays her to take good care of them so they'll last. And she is helping to win the war when she does!

Blackout Here Success Sunday

Despite considerable confusion caused by the new alarm signals used for the first time Sunday night, the all-out blackout then was considered quite successful by civilian defense officials.

It was announced last week that a new preliminary signal, three short blasts and one long, would be used to summon the workers in the different branches to their posts; that the extinguishing of the street lights would be the signal for turning off all houselights; and that the sounding of the audible alarm would have no significance to the public, except to notify them that the "raid" had actually begun.

Instead, it appears that many local people took the "V for Victory" signal as a sign to turn off their lights, and turned them on again at the sounding of the second audible signal.

For the first time, the civilian defense staff deliberately threw the workers off-stride, making problems purposely complicated and vague in order to test the wardens' own resourcefulness. While some confusion prevailed, the test was as successful as had been expected.

Special precinct tests were held for the wardens, about 15 to each district; these, too, were quite successful. Evacuation problems were worked out for the first time, and though only "token" conveyances were sent to the scene of the supposed disaster, adequate transportation, food, shelter and bedding were fully arranged for 75 refugees.

Because of some defect in communications which is still being traced, Andover was notified of the approaching blackout fully five minutes after the "V" sirens began to sound in Lawrence. About 350 wardens were on duty, the largest number that has yet been assembled for a blackout.

The medical personnel and equipment proved quite adequate for the needs and the confusion of an actual air-raid. The wardens purposely gave vague information, giving only confused and incomplete data on the location of damage, number and kind of casualties.

Police received reports of only very minor violations, and most of them were of traffic rather than of the blacking-out itself. A field hospital was set up in the basement of the Junior high school and efficiently manned; this was the first time that the basement has been used. The base hospital, as always, was at Phillips Academy's Isham infirmary.

Both regional and local officials were present at various parts of the town, especially the region centering around Elm and High streets, where the main incidents took place. They compiled careful data on the speed and efficiency with which the different units operated.

P. T. A. Tea Wednesday

The funeral will be held from the home Friday morning, with a mass of requiem at St. Joseph's chapel, Ballardvale, at 9:30. Burial will be in the family lot in St. Augustine's cemetery.

A resident here for several years, Mrs. Katherine A. (Sweeney) McVey, 45, widow of Atty. Edward J. McVey, died Monday evening at her home at 11 Chestnut street after a brief illness.

Her survivors include three sons, Edward D., John M., and Paul McVey; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sweeney; four sisters, Mrs. G. A. Murphy of Whitman, Mrs. John J. Crawford of Tilton, N. H., Mrs. Alfred Nichols and Miss Margaret Sweeney of Andover; and a brother, John J. Sweeney of Quincy.

Mrs. Margaret A. Murphy, a resident of Andover for 30 years, died Sunday night at her home at 28 Florence street after a long illness. She was the widow of the Hon. Thomas J. Murphy, former member of the Canadian Parliament and minister of Marine and Fisheries in Newfoundland.

Abbot Academy Notes

Most of the girls who plan to be at the school this week-end will be attending the Andover-Exeter game on Saturday afternoon. A number of parents and friends will be present as well.

Dr. Fuess will be the speaker at the vesper service on Sunday at 7:30, and friends of Phillips and of Abbot are cordially invited to attend.

Field Day last Saturday was a complete success, with fair skies and excellent demonstrations of skill in the various sports represented. Tennis singles was won again by Molly Hubbard of Erie, Pennsylvania, who defeated Jean Replogle of Scarsdale, New York, in two sets out of two. Molly is a Gargoyle. In the doubles, Nancy Emerson of Titusville, Pa. and Marion Stevens of Short Hills, New Jersey, Gargoyles, defeated Anne and Elizabeth Garratt of Jamestown, New York, Griffins; and Hilton McLain of Dongan Hills, New York, and Anne Locke of Methuen, Griffins, defeated Peggy Jacobus of Wauwatosa, Wisconsin, and Winifred Tucker of Bermuda, Gargoyles. The basket-ball and hockey games were both won by the Griffins, but both were closely contested and well played. At the close of the contests nearly the entire school went to see "Mrs. Miniver," returned for a buffet supper, and then attended a general school rally where the day's honors as well as those of the entire fall sports season were awarded. Excitement ran high as Miss Hearsey presented the coveted emblems of achievement, and the day ended with serenades to her, to Miss Carpenter, Miss Elvedt and Miss Ripley, and to the Gargoyle and Griffin captains and teams.

The winter season for the physical education department began on Monday with classes in gymnastics, military drill, and modern dance.

It was announced last week that a new preliminary signal, three short blasts and one long, would be used to summon the workers in the different branches to their posts; that the extinguishing of the street lights would be the signal for turning off all houselights; and that the sounding of the audible alarm would have no significance to the public, except to notify them that the "raid" had actually begun.

Instead, it appears that many local people took the "V for Victory" signal as a sign to turn off their lights, and turned them on again at the sounding of the second audible signal.

For the first time, the civilian defense staff deliberately threw the workers off-stride, making problems purposely complicated and vague in order to test the wardens' own resourcefulness. While some confusion prevailed, the test was as successful as had been expected.

Special precinct tests were held for the wardens, about 15 to each district; these, too, were quite successful. Evacuation problems were worked out for the first time, and though only "token" conveyances were sent to the scene of the supposed disaster, adequate transportation, food, shelter and bedding were fully arranged for 75 refugees.

Because of some defect in communications which is still being traced, Andover was notified of the approaching blackout fully five minutes after the "V" sirens began to sound in Lawrence. About 350 wardens were on duty, the largest number that has yet been assembled for a blackout.

The medical personnel and equipment proved quite adequate for the needs and the confusion of an actual air-raid. The wardens purposely gave vague information, giving only confused and incomplete data on the location of damage, number and kind of casualties.

Police received reports of only very minor violations, and most of them were of traffic rather than of the blacking-out itself. A field hospital was set up in the basement of the Junior high school and efficiently manned; this was the first time that the basement has been used. The base hospital, as always, was at Phillips Academy's Isham infirmary.

Both regional and local officials were present at various parts of the town, especially the region centering around Elm and High streets, where the main incidents took place. They compiled careful data on the speed and efficiency with which the different units operated.

Abbot Academy Notes

Most of the girls who plan to be at the school this week-end will be attending the Andover-Exeter game on Saturday afternoon. A number of parents and friends will be present as well.

Dr. Fuess will be the speaker at the vesper service on Sunday at 7:30, and friends of Phillips and of Abbot are cordially invited to attend.

Field Day last Saturday was a complete success, with fair skies and excellent demonstrations of skill in the various sports represented. Tennis singles was won again by Molly Hubbard of Erie, Pennsylvania, who defeated Jean Replogle of Scarsdale, New York, in two sets out of two. Molly is a Gargoyle. In the doubles, Nancy Emerson of Titusville, Pa. and Marion Stevens of Short Hills, New Jersey, Gargoyles, defeated Anne and Elizabeth Garratt of Jamestown, New York, Griffins; and Hilton McLain of Dongan Hills, New York, and Anne Locke of Methuen, Griffins, defeated Peggy Jacobus of Wauwatosa, Wisconsin, and Winifred Tucker of Bermuda, Gargoyles. The basket-ball and hockey games were both won by the Griffins, but both were closely contested and well played. At the close of the contests nearly the entire school went to see "Mrs. Miniver," returned for a buffet supper, and then attended a general school rally where the day's honors as well as those of the entire fall sports season were awarded. Excitement ran high as Miss Hearsey presented the coveted emblems of achievement, and the day ended with serenades to her, to Miss Carpenter, Miss Elvedt and Miss Ripley, and to the Gargoyle and Griffin captains and teams.

The winter season for the physical education department began on Monday with classes in gymnastics, military drill, and modern dance.

Punchard Pounds Methuen, 31-6

Punchard's football team, all-out for a win over a traditional rival on the holiday afternoon, trounced Methuen at the playstead yesterday to the tune of 31 to 6.

Punchard backs scored in every period to turn what had been expected to be a close game into a rout. They were clearly ahead in every statistic compiled as well as in the final score.

Methuen's only score, in the third period, came when Punchard was already leading, 25-0, and the second string was on the field.

Punchard's first score came when Al Dea, Punchard center, recovered a fumble on the Methuen 30, Frank Buntin, whose broken-field running was reminiscent of that of his brother last year, going for pay dirt on the next try. Captain Gil Hamlin's boot was good.

The second touchdown was due to Buntin's personal effort, passing once and carrying four times, to bring the ball to the three-yard line. Escholz and Hamlin made it from there.

Another Methuen fumble was recovered by Lawrence on Methuen's 42, and Buntin, Escholz and Hamlin formed the winning combination for the third tally. The fourth score came on a short pass from Hamlin to Lawrence, who ran 32 yards in the clear to score.

Break After Blackout In Local Drugstore

More than $100 in bills, though no silver was taken, was stolen from a cash register in the Simeone drugstore on Main street sometime Sunday night. Since the store had remained open until after the blackout, the theft took place sometime between 10:00 Sunday and 7:00 Monday morning.

William Simeone, proprietor of the store, notified the police Monday morning, and Sgt. W. R. Hickey, and later Chief George A. Dane, made a thorough investigation of the premises. Mr. Simeone stated that he believed he had locked all the doors when he left Sunday night, and the policeman on duty at that time stated that everything had been in order during his two subsequent rounds.

The keys were so carefully hidden, on the store premises, that it was apparent that the thief saw them being put away. The fact that no marks were found on any of the doors to show that they had been forced, indicated that the person may have been in the store when it was closed for the night, possibly hidden in a telephone booth.

Enrollment Disappointing For Adult Education

Classes in adult education will be held for the first time Monday night. Miss Florence McCarthy will teach the course in citizenship. Miss Katherine Sweeney that in English.

The classes will be held Monday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9. Since registration was disappointing on the two evenings set aside for the purpose, Monday and Tuesday of this week, enrollments will be accepted on class nights next week. If a sufficient number do not register then, the classes will have to be discontinued.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE NOTES

A column designed to furnish material of interest and value to air raid wardens, medical personnel, and all others engaged in Andover's civilian defense.

NEW BOMBS

(Four new types of enemy bombs were described here last week. In this week's continuation, methods of combatting them are outlined.)

The small 2.2 pound fire bomb without explosive charge is still the most widely used of all types, except by the Japanese. Bombs which explode on impact, or those without explosive charges, present only the problem of dealing with fire.

The small fire bombs with delayed-action explosive charges, however, require a revision of instructions concerning the types of cover affording full protection from the blast.

1. A brick wall four and one-half inches thick is considered full protection against the explosive charge now being used in these bombs. A three-inch thickness will suffice if the bricks are of the best quality. Lath and plaster walls, wooden doors and the like do not offer full protection, but personal risk may be greatly reduced by assuming a crouching or prone position behind the best available cover.

2. Where fires are likely to spread rapidly, even bombs which may explode should be attacked promptly from behind the best available cover. Care should be exercised to expose not more than one hand while playing a stream of water on the surrounding area, but the risk should be taken where unchecked fires might start a conflagration. Water may be thrown from a small container if a pump has not yet arrived, to permit the wetting of nearby inflammable material; this is, however, less efficient than a jet of water. In this case, water should be thrown from a crouching position behind cover, and it need not be thrown on the bomb itself.

3. Use of a jet of water enables the operator to work at a much greater distance than the "short-range" methods employing sand, other smothering agents, or a spray of water. Sand cannot be depended upon because these bombs have a greater fragmentation effect than those formerly used. The public is warned against the use of all such smothering agents as "bomb extinguishing" powders, and such devices as scoops, grabs and snuffers. They are dangerous, and entirely without merit. The use of spray and sand is no longer recommended because the possibility of fragmentation makes it too dangerous to approach the bomb closely.

4. The new types of bombs increase the importance of storing water in the home. Containers formerly used for sand should now, if possible, be used for water. Storage tanks used in connection with water heaters and the like may be useful if they can be drained quickly. The location of the drain valve should be marked so that it can be found quickly in the dark.

A thorough search of the premises should be made after every raid, and unexploded bombs reported promptly to the bomb reconnaissance agent. All areas touched by oil from the phosphorus-oil bombs should be kept wet until they are examined, and physical contact with fragments of such bombs, or ground or equipment splashed with their liquid, should be avoided.

These developments in enemy air attack mean that the forces of workers trained in this work must be increased as rapidly as possible. Methods of attack may be changed frequently, as our enemies desperately seek to incite fear in civilian ranks. They should serve to intensify our efforts to develop a large well-trained force that is ready for a challenge.

Pvt. Bernard B. Corrigan of Fort Geronimo, N. M., is enjoying a short furlough at his Osgood road home.
